Dear IACP members,

It is my great pleasure and honor to report IACP annual activities in the 2011 USCAP meeting (annual dinner gathering, reception, and Best Abstract Award ceremony) and The 7th Asia-Pacific IAP Congress in Taipei.

1. IACP Annual Dinner Gathering

Our Annual Dinner Gathering was held at Casa Rio (a Mexican restaurant) in San Antonio, Texas between 5:30-7:30 pm, Sunday, February 27, 2011. This year we adopted buffet as our dinner format to give our members flexibility. Thirty-six members attended the dinner.

2. IACP Annual Reception and Best Abstract Award Ceremony

We held our reception in the San Antonio Marriott River Center. Although due to the hotel schedule arrangement, our reception was delayed by almost one hour, our members showed great patience with great attendance. During this reception, we presented the IACP Best Abstract Award to two pathology trainees.

This year we received 36 abstracts for Best Abstract Award. The selection committee was organized by Dr. Tsung-Teh Wu (Mayo Clinic). The four judges were Dr. Gary Tse (The Chinese University of Hong Kong), Dr. Lizhi Zhang (Mayo Clinic), Dr. Yunn-Yi Chen (University of California-San Francisco), and Dr. Xiaolong Jin (Shanghai Ruijin Hospital). We want to thank Dr. Wu and the four judges for their outstanding work.

The two recipients for Best Abstract Award are Dr. Xiaoping Zhou from Ohio State University and Dr. Hongying Huang from New York University Medical Center. Congratulations on Xiaoping and Hongying for their great work! Their abstract titles are:

Dr. Xiaoping Zhou, Ohio state University

Title: Distinct KRAS Mutation Spectrum in Colorectal Carcinoma and Lung Adenocarcinoma Implicates Different Mutagenesis.

Dr. Hongying Huang, New York University Medical Center

Title: microRNA Associated with Aggressive Prostate Cancer in Racial Disparity

3. Participating the 7th Asia-Pacific IAP Congress in Taipei

IACP supported and actively participated in the 7th Asia-Pacific IAP Congress, which was successfully held in Taipei between May 20 and 24, 2011.

Drs. Yao-Tseng Chen, Liang Cheng, Joe Ma, Ho-Keung Ng, Ie-Ming Shih, Wun-Ju Shieh, Puay Hoon Tan, Gary Tse, Helen Wang, Howard Wu, Tsung-Teh Wu, Tzyy-Choou Wu, and Matthew M. Yeh served as the international convenors for this conference. Dr. Wen-Ju Shieh was invited to give a plenary speech (öGoing Forth to The Past: The Roles of Pathologists in Studying Emerging Infectious Diseasesö). Many of them and other IACP members also acted as moderators and speakers in this conference. Thanks for their great contributions to the 7th Asia-Pacific IAP congress.

The current Executive Committee (EC) will complete the term on June 30, 2011. Dr. Gary Tse, President-Elect, will become IACP President starting July 1, 2011. The current officers will move to the notch above to take alternative responsibilities. Dr. Kar-Ming Fung will continue to be our Executive Vice President and webmaster.

Finally we ask you kindly to update your contact information at your earliest convenience. Please send your contact information to me (dengfeng99@yahoo.com) or Dr. Gary Tse (garytse@cuhk.edu.hk) to update your profile.

Thank you all for your continuous support to IACP!

Sincerely,

Dengfeng Cao
