Course Description and Objectives 宗旨与目的

The symposium is designed to target Chinese pathologists, oncologists, and residents. Course languages include Chinese or English with Chinese interpretation. Based on new WHO Classification of lymphoma, the lectures will cover updated knowledge in molecular biology, immunohistochemistry, flow cytometry, histopathology, and therapy of lymphoma. The lectures will address common diagnostic and therapeutic issues with real case presentation and glass slides discussion. Attendees will experience a pleasant and relaxed atmosphere for learning from outstanding pathologists and oncologists from the USA and China. The 3-day courses will provide opportunity of interaction and communication among pathologists and oncologists and the faculties from China, United States and other countries. Future collaboration will be explored and encouraged. Each attendee will receive a free CD-ROM containing illustrative Powerpoint presentations of each topic presented, totaling over 3,000 images. A discount original textbook of WHO Classification: Tumor of Hemopoietic and Lymphoid Tissues 2001 will be supplied for each registered attendees. A special section for breast cancer is planned during the third day of the symposium which will address the critical issues in breast cancer research, pathological diagnosis, and treatment.

Hubei Province Cancer Hospital / Institute

Hubei Province Cancer Hospital/Institute, established in 1973 and affiliated with Wuhan University School of Medicine, is the largest cancer hospital in Hubei Province and the center for teaching and training of medical students and oncologists from all parts of China. The Hospital has 530 beds and treats more than 6,000 inpatients and 50,000 outpatients annually. Treatment approaches in its various departments and centers (including Radiation Oncology, Breast Oncology, Medical Oncology, Hubei Provincial Radiotherapy Center, Hubei Provincial Chemotherapy Center, Hubei Provincial Research Center for Breast Diseases, and Hubei Provincial Tumor Stereospecific Radiotherapy Center) have resulted in five-year survival rates for patients that exceed the national average

Creighton University Medical Center

Creighton University, one of 28 Jesuit colleges and universities in the nation, enrolls more than 6,000 students annually in nine schools and colleges, including medicine, dentistry, and law. Creighton University, located in very livable Omaha, Nebraska, is consistently ranked as one of the finest comprehensive universities in the nation by U.S. News and World Report. Creighton University Medical Center (CUMC), a 404-bed academic medical center, is among Omaha's oldest providers of hospital care.

The Department of Pathology consists of 16 faculty members who are involved in a variety of educational programs for medical and health science students and physicians, clinical service activities, and various research projects. Creighton Medical Laboratories (CML), in operation since 1968, provides laboratory services for over 300 clients in the upper Midwest and processes over 160,000 specimens annually.
